TRISTLE FAREWELL.

Scotch Banquet in Honor of Departing Belthens.

There was a good attendance at the Scottish Thistle Club yesterday evening, when the special business was to take leave of Thomas Lindsay, a past chief, who leaves by the Australia next Saturday for Scotland. It having been learned that Alex. Wallace, a member of the club, was leaving by the S. S. Monowai then due, he was also made a guest of the evening. After opening "good of the club" was made the sole order of business. There was an abundant layout of Scotch oaten, scones and shortbread, which, together with "Scotch cream" and temperance beverages, was handed round by the stewards at seasonable intervals. The national bakes were the handiwork of the secretary's godwife—Mrs. Thomas Black—and were pronounced perfect by Caledonian gourmands. Arch. C. Steele, chief, in appropriate terms gave an opening address of farewell to the departing members, and others made suitable remarks later in the same connection. A dozen of the Scots responded to calls for the "auld sangs," and Chester Doyle, the only permanent guest of the club, let his fine voice be heard more than once, venturing, and with great success, upon a standard ballad of the land o' cakes. He was rewarded with a bannock. Messrs. Lindsay and Wallace replied in cordial terms to the good wishes of the meeting, heartily wishing the club success in their absence. It was one of the most pleasant socials held in the history of the club.

Card.

The following note explains itself to all interested:

DEAR MR. LUNING.—In reference to my leaving per S. S. Monowai, I regret to say, that Dr. Murray does not think me strong enough to travel, but hopes that I can leave by the next steamer, the Warrimoo. Believe me, I am most anxious to avail myself of the kindness and generosity of those who have come forward to help me and my children, and will leave here as soon as I am able to travel. With thanks also to you for your kindness. Yours very truly,

MAY HERBERT.

MR. HUMPHREYS' ANSWER.

while there, away from home ties and Christian influences, he contracted vicious habits and that there is much in his past life to regret, and that his career precludes him from saying with Pharisaical complacency: "I thank Thee, O God, that I am not as other men."

"Admits that Julia Afong some time prior to his marriage presented Marie K. Humphreys with 40 shares of Ewa stock, but he avers that said gift was made without his request, knowledge or consent, and that he did not learn of it until one week before his marriage; that as soon as he did learn of it, seeing that it had aroused the envy and jealousy of the complainants, he requested Marie K. Humphreys to return said Ewa stock, and she, in good faith, did immediately offer to return the same and that Julia Afong refused to accept or permit a return thereof. Denies that Julia Afong has ever given any other property, or any sum of money, to said Marie Humphreys; or that she has ever given to this respondent one cent, or any property, except one scarf pin worth $10 as a Christmas present. Avers that some of the complainants have circulated false reports that Julia Afong had filled the home of respondent with rare and costly articles, solely for the purpose of building up an artificial public sentiment in their behalf; avers that the aggregate value of all of his household and kitchen furniture does not exceed the sum of two hundred dollars. That such little objects d'art and pieces of virtu as adorn his home were wedding gifts to his wife from loving and thoughtful friends. That as 'money is the root of all evil,' so it is the root of complaint in this case. That, owing to the advance in the price of sugar, the income of Julia Afong will, during the year 1896, be quite large, and that complainants, knowing such to be the fact, desire to deprive said Julia C. Afong of what is rightfully hers and to appropriate the same to their own uses and purposes and to that end they seek to prostitute the process of this Honorable Court of conscience and equity."

Prospective Wedding.

On next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, Wm. H. Charlock Jr. and Miss Minnie E. Rose, daughter of Harry Rose, will be joined in the bonds of wedlock, at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. L. Sims. "Chip" Charlock, brother of the prospective groom, will act as best man. The family and a few immediate friends only will be present. A luncheon and reception will follow the ceremony. The contracting parties' many friends in Honolulu will wish them all the happiness that generally falls to the lot of newly-married couples.

RATTLESNAKE WINE.

A Violent Poison as Antidote for Leprosy.

Benjamin Goosch in his "Medical and Surgical Observations," published in 1771, gives a summary of different ancient therapeutic methods based on the use of animal poisons. One of his observations relates to a case of severe pain, spasms, etc., of long duration. Goosch says, after speaking of the patient's sufferings: "Not to appear inhuman to so wretched a being, after telling him I could do nothing I sent him a bottle of rattlesnake wine, to take a glass of frequently. This was in the West Indies drank as the highest cordial. Three nights after the patient walked in. 'Sir,' said he, 'you cannot be so much amazed as I am, nor half so much pleased; I am come to thank you and, if not criminal, to worship you.'" Goosch's account of how he learned the virtues of rattlesnake wine is as follows: "A very wealthy old gentleman in the West Indies had long been afflicted with leprosy to a high degree which was deemed incurable by his physicians. Apparently in a dying state he made his will, leaving a large legacy to a female servant who had lived with him many years. This circumstance being known to the servant, she and her paramour studied and contrived how to make away with him in such a manner as to raise suspicion. They put the heads of rattlesnakes into the wine he drank, thinking it would prove an infallible poison; on the contrary, he grew better, and the criminals, imagining the poison was not strong enough, added more snake venom, whereby the gentleman was restored to perfect health. Conscience finally put this servant upon her knees before her master, confessing her crime. Forgiveness was granted, and the old gentleman gave her a sum of money, ordering her to depart and never see him more."

Facts About a Watch

(From N. Y. Commercial Adv.)

"A watch balance gives five vibrations every second, 300 every minute, 18,000 every hour, 432,000 every day, 157,680,000 every year. At each vibration it rotates about 14 times, which makes 197,100,000 revolutions every year. In order that we may better understand the stupendous amount of labor performed by these tiny works, let us make a pertinent comparison. Take for illustration a locomotive with six foot driving wheels. Let its wheels be run until they have given the same number of revolutions that a watch does in one year, and they will have covered a distance equal to twenty-eight complete circuits of the earth."

What stupendous working powers your tiny little machine has; and how little attention you give it until it has refused to go further. "Tired out." The accumulation of old oil, particles of dirt, so minute you can't see it, have so added to its burdens, that it refuses to go further. Now is the time to send it to a watch-maker, not until now, for it will no longer go as it should. How much better to give it all the attention it needs while it yet can go. Is it no better than a common lawn mower? You give it less attention. Would you think of running a mower for a year or two steadily every day without a little oil, something to help it over the rough places. Yet you are letting your valuable little time piece wear itself out, simply for want of a little attention. It is our business to take care of your watch. Only expert workmen are employed for that purpose, and what we do, is well-done. All complicated work finds its way to our workshop, let us have some of your easy work also. Don't get into the habit of bringing it to us after it has been through the hands of numerous others; it will be cheaper for you to have it done well in the first place.

Timely Topics

March 14, 1896.

A church congregation down in Sanders, Ky., was dismissed most summarily under unpleasant circumstances two Sundays since. Right in the middle of the preacher's discourse there bolted into the church through the half-open door what appeared to be a black and white cat, closely followed by a yellow dog. Cat and dog ran swiftly down the middle aisle to the platform. The preacher taken unawares, did the natural thing, kicked at the cat, hit it, and landed it squarely in the middle of the congregation. Then it turned out that the cat was a skunk. The rest of the story is left to the imagination of the reader.

This week we want to call your attention especially to the ALASKA REFRIGERATOR and give you a few items concerning its construction.

To give strength and durability, an inside body, or frame is made of well dried, matched wood, to which hardwood cleats are solidly nailed. Upon these cleats the outer body, or frame, is built.

The inner frame is made from perfectly odorless wood, and is lined with zinc. Polished as bright as a mirror, presenting a very clean and attractive appearance.

All exposed wood, as under the lids and about the doors, is odorless tulip poplar, thoroughly shellaced. This makes the Refrigerator clean and sweet.

Between the outer and inner walls there is an inch and a half space filled with PURE CHARCOAL. There is nothing so good in every way for filling the space between the two walls of a Refrigerator as Pure Charcoal. It has a purifying quality possessed by no other filling, besides showing just as high a test as an insulator as mineral wool, and a much better showing than a dead air space or than paper insulation.

The locks are entirely new in principle, and are, without exception, the best ever used on a Refrigerator. They will keep the door closed perfectly tight, even if they were left one-eighth inch loose.

The hinges are very strong, beautiful in design, and made expressly for THE ALASKA REFRIGERATOR.

All the trimmings are solid brass, dipped finish, this being the latest style in fine brass goods.

From the results of tests made during the past three years, we are convinced that the ALASKA is the best Refrigerator in the market, in construction, in power to preserve perishables, in economy of ice, and, in fact, in all the points necessary to make them first-class in every respect.

COFFEE ESTATE AND LANDS
For Sale.

I am directed to sell at Public Auction on Wednesday, May 27, '96, at 12 o'clock noon of said day at my sales rooms on Queen street, in Honolulu (unless sooner disposed of at private sale) the following described property, namely:

A tract of land of about 2,300 acres in fee simple situate at Kolo and Oloheoiaua 1 in South Kona, Island of Hawaii, about eight miles by a good road from Hilo, one of the largest villages in Kona. There is an excellent landing on the land itself from where the coffee and other produce could be shipped and a good site for a mill near the landing. Fifty acres of land are in coffee. Roughly estimated there is about seven hundred acres of splendid coffee land lying all on one block on both sides of the Government Road. Eight hundred acres lying above and to the East of the seven hundred acres above mentioned is also excellent land and although at a higher altitude is no doubt also well adapted for coffee culture. The lower land below the coffee belt is suitable for pineapples and sugar. There is a drying house, store and work-rooms, a Gordon's Palper, laborers' quarters and water tanks at the plantation, and the land is partly walled. There has never been any blight on this land, although coffee was planted a great many years ago. Old residents of Kona like the late D. H. Nahiha, J. W. Kualiuku and others have testified to this fact. There is a sea fishery appurtenant to Oloheoiaua 1.

Terms cash or part of the purchase price can remain on mortgage at eight per cent per annum. Deeds and stamps at the expense of purchaser.

A map of the property can be seen and further particulars obtained at my sales rooms.
